Inspire

Michael K. Harty, PhD

She offered to photograph a family of strangers, stepped backward and fell, needed surgery. Later, thanked the family for sending the picture she took.

For a year she could not take a step without pain. She had her son put a bicycle bell on her walker.

She's seen a dozen doctors, nurses, therapists, consultants. She thinks she's made a dozen new friends.

She sees a poem in one of her magazines and clips it for me. “Maybe I can inspire you,” she says.
