In the Original Investigation titled "Assessment of Stimulant Use and Cardiovascular Event Risks Among Older Adults," published October 25, 2021, there were errors in 2 column headers in a table, an error in a standardized difference in the abstract and results, and 2 standardized differences erroneously referred to as statistically significant in the results. This article has been corrected.1

REFERENCE