CORRECTION

Error in Author Name: In the Original Investigation titled “Families as Partners in Hospital Error and Adverse Event Surveillance,” published online February 27, 2017, and printed in the April 2017 issue of JAMA Pediatrics, there was an error in the spelling of an author’s name. Rebecca L. Blankenburg’s name was corrected. This article was corrected online.

Error in Key Points: In the Original Investigation titled “Accuracy of Complete Blood Cell Counts to Identify Febrile Infants 60 Days or Younger With Invasive Bacterial Infections,” published online September 11, 2017, and printed in the November 2017 issue of JAMA Pediatrics, there was an error in the second paragraph of the Key Points. The numerical value for the absolute neutrophil count should be ≥10,000/μL. This article was corrected online.

Citation Errors in Figure 2: In the Original Investigation titled “Mobile Health Interventions for Improving Health Outcomes in Youth: A Meta-analysis,” published online March 30, 2017, and in the May 2017 issue of JAMA Pediatrics, many of the cited references in the Source column in Figure 2 were incorrectly numbered. The reference numbers in the Source column have been updated. This article was corrected online.

Correction of an Author’s Degree and the Map of China in a Figure and eFigure: In the Original Investigation titled “Association of Long-term Exposure to Airborne Particulate Matter of 1 μm or Less With Preterm Birth in China,” published January 2, 2018, and in this issue of JAMA Pediatrics, the degree for author Qin Li has been corrected to “MMSc” instead of “PhD.” As a result of this correction, references to Li in the Author Contributions and Funding/Support sections have also been updated to “Mr Q. Li” instead of “Dr Q. Li.” In addition, Figure 1 and eFigure 2 in the Supplement have been replaced to correct the western border in these maps of China. This article was corrected online.

Error in Article Title: The Original Investigation by Datar and Nicosia,1 “Assessing Social Contagion in Body Mass Index, Overweight, and Obesity Using a Natural Experiment,” was published online on January 22, 2018, in JAMA Pediatrics, under the erroneous title, “Association of Exposure to Communities With Higher Ratios of Obesity With Increased Body Mass Index and Risk of Overweight and Obesity Among Parents and Children.” The original title has been restored.